Comments

I thoroughly enjoyed my time at the Ph.D. writing retreat and am grateful for the opportunity to provide feedback on my experience. While I found it difficult to be fully involved in the workshops and writing sessions simultaneously, I appreciate the effort put into organizing a complete retreat.

Thanks again for a wonderful writing retreat experience.

What worked best?

What worked best?

Shut up and write

The shut up and right sessions worked well.

Writing venues were good, and lots of access to coffee for when I needed to get up and stretch my legs plus nice fika in breaks shut up and write as well as presentation by Mandy

I think everything to do with the writing retreat was really good. I wish I had had the time to participate in the workshops.

What could be improved?

What could be improved?

I would like to express my appreciation for the workshops and suggest that the first day be dedicated to writing sessions, with or without the Pomodoro technique. I want to emphasize that I enjoyed attending all the workshops, but on the first day, I was particularly anxious to focus on my writing and progress.

It is very unfortunate that the management of the writing retreat solely consisted of women. A balanced gender ratio can improve tasks in several ways:

Diverse perspectives: Having a balanced gender ratio means that there is a diverse range of perspectives and experiences brought to the table. This can help ensure that tasks are approached from different angles, and can lead to more innovative and creative solutions.

Increased creativity: When people from different genders work together, they bring their own unique approaches and ideas to the table. This can spark new ideas and lead to more creative problem-solving.

Enhanced decision-making: Studies have shown that diverse groups tend to make better decisions than homogeneous ones. This is because a diverse group is more likely to consider a wider range of factors and viewpoints when making decisions.

Improved morale and productivity: When everyone feels that they are equally valued and have an equal opportunity to contribute, morale and productivity tend to be higher. This can lead to a more positive work environment and better outcomes for tasks.

Overall it was good, I did find hair in my bathroom after shower and found another person who said she found other people's hair in the bathroom as well, but this is nothing to do with the organisation of the retreat. That said, the steaks were under done as well, but that's another story

Rooms and food, and ease of access to the place by public transport.
